

Only you can determine your success and failure in the job market. When it comes down it you have the power to create opportunities and the ability to follow through on them. There are many things you can do to enhance your career search and increase your chances of landing your dream job.

Networking is a great way to influence the path of your career. Networking is powerful because it is how the majority of jobs are filled. A very small amount of available jobs are listed in the papers and online. Most jobs are filled by word of mouth. You can network in a number of ways via friends, family and colleagues. Let people know your looking for a job and what you are interested in. Social settings are also a great place to meet potential network contacts. Make use of job fairs, online communities and even further educations courses.

Development is another way you can stay ahead of the pack. You want to be able to offer something unique to your prospective employer. If that means taking a class or learning new things then you should do it. Make use of the resources available to you and develop your profile as a viable candidate. Developing your career strategy is a good way to further enhance your job search. Learn about cover letter and resume writing. Get to know the processes and protocols when it comes to interviews and job correspondence.

Seeking professional help is a great way to set you up for success in the job market. This could mean hiring a professional resume writer to help you craft a high impact resume. You could work with a mentor to help you with development and career strategy. Mentors are ideal for helping you find direction and set goals as well as plan the path to achieving them. A mentor is a good network contact also. Mentors can be anyone from a friend or colleague or business associate.

Make use of all the avenues available to you in your job search. Apply for jobs online and set up an online profile so that employers can find you anytime. Use traditional methods of finding a job. Write networking letters and contact companies you are interested in working for. Sign up with a recruitment agency that will help match you with suitable jobs.
